

REHEARSAL . . . Jack Cowger and Margaret Weatherly are pictured rehearsing a scene from the Chinese fantasy "Lady Precious Stream" to be presented by the Footlight Theater June 30, July 1, 7, 8, 14 and 15. The play is slated for the Crenshaw School. Reservations may be obtained from any member of the Footlight Theater.

Chinese Legend Provides Script For Production by Footlighters

"Lady Precious Stream," a play based upon an ancient Chinese legend, will be presented by Footlight Theater at the Crenshaw School, 186th St. and Crenshaw, on June 30, July 1, 7, 8, 14, and 15.

The play, written by Shi I. Hsiung and directed by Robert Taylor, tells the romantic success story of a young Chinese maiden of noble birth, Precious Stream, played by Margaret Weatherly, who loved a humble gardener, Hsieh Ping-Kuei, played by Jack Cowger. Turned out of her father's house she goes to live with her husband in a cave, vowing never to return unless she can do so as a lady of wealth.

THE FOOTLIGHTERS will stage the play "in the round" and in the manner of the Chinese theater.

The property men, in classic Chinese drama style, stay in view on stage and not only handle props, but attend to the actor's every want including furnishing him with cushions when he is about to sit down and removing them again when he rises.

OTHER MEMBERS in the cast include Clarence Lundy, Karen Kraegel, Gordon See,

Bank Promotes North Torrance Man to Officer

Torrance man Winston K. Packard this week was elevated to officer rank at Bank of America's Los Angeles Office, it was announced by Vice President Leo Rachford, head of personnel for the bank's Southern California division.

Packard, who lives at 3727 Artesia Blvd., heads the adjustment subsection and has the title of assistant cashier. He previously held junior officer rank at Central Office, where he has spent his entire 17-year career with the bank.

A native of Chicago, he attended high school in Wisconsin before coming to California and furthering his education at the American Institute of Banking.

Packard enjoys playing the organ, bowling, and golf in his leisure time.
